Message from the Police Commissioner

Dear Members of the Service,

Nelson Mandela once said, “Education is the most powerful weapon you can use to change the world.” This scholarship guide identifies various opportunities for you to expand your education and develop crucial skills that will change your career and benefit the department.

Continued learning enables us to excel both personally and professionally, and is invaluable to all members of the service who seek to better their careers. It is our duty to understand the importance of the roles we play as part of the greatest police department in the world, and continually strive to improve our ability to protect the freedoms that make our society great.

I strongly encourage you to take advantage of the various opportunities available to all uniform and civilian members of the service, including traditional scholarships, non-traditional educational opportunities, educational leave grants and a variety of tuition reduction programs. This guide will help you identify the opportunities suitable to your rank or title.

All scholarship decisions are objective, based on prior academic performance, professional evaluations and Departmental recommendations, among other factors. Some awards are more competitive than others, but there is no limit to how many times you may apply to any one scholarship. So I encourage you to read this guide carefully, and take the first step toward a more rewarding career. The only failure is the failure to try.

All the best,

William J. Bratton
POLICE COMMISSIONER

Training Bureau Scholarship Unit

The mission of the Scholarship Unit is to develop educational opportunities for all members of the service by creating partnerships with colleges, universities, and other institutions. This coordination of resources is executed with the purpose of enhancing personal and career aspirations of members of the Department. Coordinating educational resources results in a more knowledgeable and professional workforce.

The Scholarship Unit seeks to enhance the Department's educational opportunities and provides counseling for members on how to proceed with their academic endeavors. The staff encourages uniformed and civilian members to take advantage of the numerous scholastic opportunities available and maintains literature on the various Departmental programs. The Scholarship Unit also hosts an annual college fair, each spring, which provides members with an opportunity to interact directly with representatives from various institutions of higher learning.

Whether you are an entry-level employee wishing to enhance your career potential or a tenured manager, a continued education provides an opportunity to enrich your career and is a worthwhile investment. In addition to enhancing your skills within the law enforcement field, pursuing higher education may provide an opportunity to explore alternative careers. Many of our uniformed and civilian members have pursued careers in medicine, teaching, government, and various other professions. In addition to opportunities offered by the Department and the City of New York, the various employee unions, religious, and fraternal organizations offer educational opportunities as well.

Converting Police Academy Training to College Credits

If you want to further your education or meet promotional eligibility requirements, the educational credits earned, for training courses completed at the Police Academy, may be converted into college credits. If you are currently attending college, have your official Police Academy (PA) transcript (which may be requested from the Training Records Unit 212-477-9750) forwarded to your school to be listed on your official transcript. Please note, some credits earned at the PA may not be accepted by the school, and most schools will not include your PA credits on their transcript unless you are an enrolled student.

Currently, sixty-four (64) college credits are required for promotion to sergeant. Ninety-six (96) credits are required for promotion to lieutenant, and a bachelor's degree is needed for promotion to captain. It is important to remember that these are minimal requirements. Many members enhance their career potential by pursuing advanced degrees (which may be accomplished through Department scholarship programs). The Educational Tracking Unit (ETU) monitors the eligibility of candidates for promotion. It also manages and updates the education records for all members of the Department.

Institutions such as Excelsior College, Frederick Community College and Thomas Edison College provide a service called "credit banking." Credit banking is a program that consolidates all of your past educational credits, test scores, and employment training records, earned from various sources, and puts them together on a single transcript (i.e. FEMA, Corrections, Police Academy, and accredited professional training courses). Members of the service are advised to refer to Operations Order

13-2008 for further information on the "On-Line Education Profile Via the Intranet," and are urged to keep their On-line Education Profiles updated to avoid unnecessary delays with promotion eligibility in the future.

Military transcripts are also accepted by the Department's Educational Tracking Unit (ETU). These transcripts will only be accepted from official military branch personnel departments. Credit banking services for military credits is unnecessary, as the ETU accepts multiple transcripts from the various accredited schools attended.

Contact the Training Records Unit (212) 477-9750 to have the official transcript of all PA courses forwarded to the school or the credit banking service of your choice. Once the school has listed the education credits earned at the PA on their official transcript, have that official transcript forwarded directly to the Education Tracking Unit to update your records. For additional information, please call the Education Tracking Unit at (212) 477-9742.

235 East 20th Street Room 808
New York, New York 10003

The following steps will assist you in using the On-Line Education Profile via the intranet to update your education/credits and help you meet the education requirements for promotion:

1. Log onto the NYPD'S FINEST Intranet homepage
2. Select WORK
3. Locate the APPLICATIONS heading
4. Click on the blue area beneath "Online Computer Systems to Help Get the Job Done" (this area will change color when touched by cursor)
5. Select PERSONNEL APPLICATIONS
6. Select "Education Tracking Login"
7. First time users select "New visitors click here to register"
8. Follow instructions listed (do not enter dashes in SS#)
9. Use proper format for dates (mm/dd/yyyy-4 digit year)
10. For optimal results select an eight (8) character password formatted like the one indicated here (Abc12345) at least one capital letter, two lowercase letters and five (5) numbers
11. Upon navigating to the entry page, select the appropriate state and enter college attended, degree earned, major/minor, credits earned, date of graduation and military branch, if applicable. To complete your record update, have an official transcript forwarded to the ETU from a college, university or other accredited higher education institution (including the United States military branches) to the address indicated below.

Preparing For The Application Process

Preparing for the application process can be overwhelming. The following page provides a detailed explanation of how to master the process. If you have difficulties with the application process, the Scholarship Unit staff will be happy to assist.

Undergraduate Programs

Enrolling in a program of any type involves a process in which you are expected to complete a detailed application form and, in many instances, requires that you provide transcripts from schools previously attended. Once you have completed the application, you will need to report the number of credits that you received from other colleges, as a result of your Police Academy Recruit Training or In-Service Training to the school you are applying to.

The best advice for completing a college or university application is to have the institution's academic advisor review the application to ensure its accuracy. Additionally, most colleges require that you submit letters of recommendations from either former teachers or current employers. It is important that you make note of application deadlines, especially if you intend to apply for financial aid, which will require an additional set of applications.

The Training Records Unit will assist you in obtaining recruit school credits and in-service course credits by sending you a Transcript Request Application. The Transcript Request Application requires specific information such as appointment date, year of recruit school attendance, as well as the company number. In order for a college or university to accept recruit school credits, an official transcript generated by the Training Records Unit must be sent directly to the academic institution in which the member is currently enrolled. The institution will determine how many credits they will accept; and it should be noted that credits are not automatically granted for completed NYPD training programs. It is recommended that all individuals requesting recruit credits and/or credits for specific in-service courses and any other accredited courses taken in the Department call the Training Records Unit, located at the Police Academy, Room 833 for an application. The Training Records Unit can be reached at 212-477-9750, forms are available on-line at www.nyc.gov/html/nypd/html/home/employees.shtml.

Preparing For The Application Process

Graduate Programs

In addition to application forms, transcripts, and recommendations, many graduate programs require standardized test scores, such as the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), and the Law School Aptitude Test (LSAT), (see Appendix B, pg.65).

Most programs accept standardized test scores taken within five years from application date. Test Scores in excess of five years will not be accepted. Each school will post its own deadline for submission of scores.

Tests such as the GRE and LSAT are made up of pages containing vocabulary tests, reading comprehension tests, analytical questions, writing samples, and some may include mathematics. There are many ways to prepare for these exams. Several continuing education programs in the City University of New York system offer preparatory classes, and there are also several privately run schools that specialize in this type of test preparation. If time or money is an issue, workbooks with sample tests and practice questions are available in bookstores. If you have access to the internet, there are several relatively inexpensive tutorial programs available on-line. Regardless of the method, taking the time to prepare will increase the probability of doing well. The sources are cited in Appendix B.

Continuing Education Programs

The application process for continuing education programs is generally easier. Since there are no degrees involved and the studies are less formal, students simply sign up for courses. Some of the more difficult certificate programs may require a formal application process, but even these are less time-consuming than traditional, degree-granting programs. Registration is also a much faster process; and often students can register for courses a few weeks, or days before classes begin.

Preparing For The Application Process

Eligibility Guidelines For All Scholarships

- Applicants are required to have a minimum of three years of service in good standing and remain in good standing throughout the duration of the scholarship.
- With the exception of the Police Reserve Association grant, NYPD personnel are only eligible for one scholarship during the course of their service with the Department.
- Some scholarships require applicants to have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) Test, Graduate Management Admissions Test (GMAT), or the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) within the past five years.
- Recipients of a Department scholarship must agree in writing to remain in the Department for a minimum of two years subsequent to the completion of their final semester. Some scholarships require a longer service commitment subsequent to program completion.
- The Scholarship Committee will award each scholarship based on fulfillment of the eligibility requirements, in conjunction with prior educational and professional performance (i.e. applicant grade point average (GPA), Departmental Annual Performance Evaluations) and personal statement.
- A 3.0 grade point average (GPA) is preferred.

Selection and Award Criteria

- Applicants must be accepted by the school offering the scholarship in accordance with their academic standards and application process. The Scholarship Committee makes the final determinations for all awards, except for New York Law School and St. John's School of Law. The Admissions Committee at each law school will determine scholarship recipients.
- Awardees must agree in writing to remain in the Department for two years after their final semester of being awarded the Educational Leave Scholarship or New York University Scholarship.
- Awardees granted a paid leave of absence for the Harvard University, SUNY at Albany, Hunter College, or the Police Commissioner's Scholarship, must agree in writing to remain in the Department for four years after final semester of award.
- Awardees granted a paid leave of absence for the FBI National Academy and CHDS Naval Postgraduate School must agree in writing to remain in the Department for three years after final semester award.
- Awardees are required to supply an official sealed transcript upon completion of each school semester, and proof of enrollment for the following semester for continuation of scholarship. A UF49 must be submitted if awardees are declining their awards, or are unable to fulfill their educational commitments.

Department Scholarships

NYPD Traditional Scholarship Program

The following is a list of traditional scholarships available with their program descriptions, eligibilities and requirements. These scholarships become active in November and are announced via Department Bulletins and FINEST messages.

Undergraduate Programs

- Pace University
- St. Joseph’s College

Graduate Programs

- Harvard Kennedy School
- Hunter College
- New York Law School
- New York University – Wagner School of Public Service
- Police Commissioner’s Scholarship
- Police Reserve Association Scholarship
- St John’s University - School of Law

Academic requirements:

- Candidate must gain admission to New York Law School.
- Candidates must have earned a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited college or university with a grade point average placing candidate above the median law school's entering class. (Note: the median GPA currently stands at 3.17, however, this is subject to change).
- Candidates must have taken the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) within the past five years with a minimum score of 151.

Additional Scholarship Opportunities:

New York Law School recently created a Public Service Scholarship Program for uniformed and other dedicated public servants.

For more information contact Adam W. Barrett, Assistant Dean of Admissions and Financial Aid, 212-431-2840, adam.barrett@nyls.edu, or visit www.nyls.edu.

Department Scholarships

Graduate Program

New York University - Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service

Award: One (1) scholarship is available on a yearly basis for two (2) public administration programs. One leads to a Master of Public Administration, the other leads to an Executive Master of Public Administration. The scholarship provides for partial tuition cost for both programs (paid by the NYC Police Foundation and NYU Wagner). Recipients of this scholarship will also be granted an Educational Leave Scholarship (subject to eligibility criteria on pg.17) for the duration of the program. The balance of tuition, fees and cost of books will be the responsibility of the student. Class attendance is strictly during off-duty time.

Eligibility: Candidates for the Master of Public Administration are Police Officers and any higher rank or any civilian member of the service. Candidates should have a minimum of three years of positive service with the Department at time of application. The Executive Master of Public Administration is available to uniformed members with a minimum of five years of service and in the ranks of Sergeant, Lieutenant or Captain. Civilians in managerial titles, with a minimum of seven years of managerial experience, are also eligible.

Academic requirements:

- A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university with a final grade point average of 3.0 or higher is required.

Graduate Program

The Police Commissioner's Graduate Scholarship

This scholarship is to be applied towards a degree that is police related, or a governmental administration program, at any of the following graduate schools: Brown University, Columbia University, Harvard University, Georgetown University, New York University, Princeton University, University of Pennsylvania, and Yale University.

Award: One (1) scholarship will be provided to a uniformed member of the service consisting of a one-time grant of $15,000. In addition, the scholarship will afford the applicant a ten and a half month (10 ½) month paid leave of absence to earn their graduate degree.

Eligibility: Must be in the rank of Police Officer through Captain. Applicants must have a minimum of seven years of service in good standing.

Academic Requirements:

- Applicants must have earned a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university with a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 3.0 or higher.
- Candidates must be a matriculated student in one of the universities listed.

Department Scholarships

Graduate Program

Police Reserve Association Scholarship

These grants are designed to encourage and support ranking members of the service to continue their education beyond the undergraduate level at accredited colleges/universities.

Award: The Police Reserve Association offers three (3) $1,500 one-time scholarship awards to three (3) uniformed members of the service (UMOS). One will be in the honor of Chief Michael Markman.

Eligibility: Candidates must be a uniformed member of the service in the rank of Police Officer through Captain.

Academic requirements:

- Candidates must be enrolled in a Graduate Program (Master's, Ph.D., JD, etc.) at an accredited institution.
- A minimum of six credits must be completed each semester.
- A grade point average (GPA) of 3.0 or higher is required for initial eligibility.

Graduate Program

St. John's University - School of Law

Award: St. John's University School of Law offers a law enforcement scholarship for its evening program. Class attendance is strictly during off-duty time.

Eligibility: Candidates must be a uniformed member of the service with a minimum of three years of service at the time of application. A letter of recommendation from an immediate supervisor and a personal statement are also required.

Academic requirements:

- A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university, with a final grade point average of 3.0 or higher is required.
- Candidates must have taken the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) within the past five years with a minimum score of 160.
- Applicants must gain acceptance by the school.

Note: Determination of scholarship awards are made exclusively by the law school's admission committee board, based upon several criteria, including but not limited to LSAT score and undergraduate GPA. The NYPD will provide a letter of recommendation.

Department Scholarships

Graduate Program

St. Joseph’s College

Award: St. Joseph’s College School of Professional and Graduate Studies offers one (1) full graduate degree scholarship each academic year, covering tuition costs. The cost of fees and books are paid by the recipient.

Eligibility: Any full time employee of the New York City Police Department (uniformed or civilian), who has been accepted to St. Joseph’s College School of Professional and Graduate Studies.

Academic requirements:

- Admission to one of St. Joseph’s College School of Professional and Graduate Studies graduate degree programs
- Candidates must have an undergraduate GPA of 3.0 or better.

DID YOU KNOW...

Originally named St. Joseph’s College for Women, the college was founded by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Brentwood, in response to the need for a day college for young women.

Department Scholarships

Graduate Program

State University of New York at Albany School of Criminal Justice

Award: The School of Criminal Justice of the State University of New York at Albany, in conjunction with the New York City Police Foundation, offers two (2) full tuition graduate scholarships leading to a Master Degree in Criminal Justice each year. This scholarship covers tuition costs. Cost of fees and books are to be paid by the student. Recipients are also responsible for costs related to travel, as well as room and board. A ten and a half month (10 ½) paid leave of absence will be granted, and the recipient must agree in writing to remain with the Department for four years after completing the degree program.

Eligibility: Candidates must be in the rank of Police Officer, Detective, Sergeant, Lieutenant or Captain with a minimum of three years of service with the Department. A letter of recommendation from a supervisor, and a written personal statement are also required.

Academic requirements:

- A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university, with a final grade point average (GPA) of 3.0 or higher is required.
- Candidates must have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), with writing sample, within the last five years with verbal and quantitative GRE scores totaling a minimum of 285.

Department Scholarships

Educational Leave Scholarship Program

Award: Up to a total of twenty-four (24) Educational Leave Grants are available to members who are enrolled in postgraduate programs (one grant will be awarded annually to the recipient of the New York University Wagner School of Public Service Scholarship). The Department's Educational Leave Scholarship Program awards members annual paid educational leave grants of eighteen (18) days, nine (9) days per academic semester.

Members may use educational leave days at their own discretion, with minimal limitations, to attend class, prepare for exams, or to participate in internships or other aspects of their academic development. Continuance of each award is dependent on the student maintaining enrollment in a graduate program, having a GPA of 3.0; and submitting necessary documentation to the Scholarship Unit each semester.

Note: Restrictions apply regarding when the recipient of the award may take educational leave days. For complete details refer to Operations Order number 5-6 dated 2/13/98 and Personnel Bureau Memo number 2 dated 1/14/97. Copies are available upon request from the Scholarship Unit at 212-477-9212. Recipients of the Educational Leave grants must agree in writing, to remain with the Department for two years after completion of the final semester of the award.

Eligibility: Candidates must be a uniformed member of the service in the rank of Police Officer, Detective, Sergeant, Lieutenant, or Captain; or a civilian member of the service with an equivalent title. Applicants require a minimum of three years of service at time of application. A letter of recommendation from a supervisor and a personal statement are also required.

Academic requirements:

- Applicants must be a new or continuing student enrolled in a postgraduate (i.e. Master's, Ph.D., and JD) program relevant to the Department's mission, at an accredited institution.
- A minimum of nine credits must be completed per semester.
- Candidates must have a GPA of 3.0 or higher for initial eligibility.
- Recipients are required to maintain a GPA of 3.0 for continuation of award.
- Continuation of award is dependent upon receipt of official sealed transcripts. Proof of further enrollment and updated Department evaluations are to be forwarded to the Scholarship Unit for every semester attended.

Non-Traditional Scholarship Opportunities

Center for Homeland Defense and Security (CHDS) Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) - Master's Degree in Homeland Security

The eighteen (18) month CHDS on-line master's degree program is provided at no cost to state (including members of the National Guard under Title 32), local municipality, and U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) government employees (including the U.S. Coast Guard) accepted into the program.

Award: Designed to accommodate the busy schedules of today's leaders, the on-line program requires participants to be in-residence only two (2) weeks per quarter (for a total of 12 weeks on job time). All travel and tuition expenses are paid for eligible participants. Participants complete the remainder of their coursework via network-based distance learning methods. Applicants must meet the following minimum qualifications to be considered for admission:

- Candidates must be employed full-time by a local, state or DHS federal government agency or the U.S. military, and have homeland security experience and responsibilities.
- A an undergraduate degree from an accredited college or university is required.
- Applicants must have a minimum 3.0 grade point average (GPA) for all undergraduate coursework or awarded a graduate degree.

Applicants with a GPA below 3.0 will be considered if they have relevant work experience and qualifications to complement their academic record. It is strongly recommended that applicants with less than a 3.0 GPA take either the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) or the Miller's Analogies Test (MAT) and obtain a score that would place them in consideration for the program.

- If accepted to the program, the applicant must continue to serve in a homeland security capacity for at least two years following graduation.

In order to enhance the sharing of information across all disciplines associated with homeland security, the program enrolls military officers and federal officials who work in concert with local and state officials. NPS provides a unique and neutral learning environment for collaboration amongst the top homeland security leaders in the nation.

Non-Traditional Scholarship Opportunities

The curriculum is structured around the key policy and organizational design problems that future homeland security leaders are likely to confront, and provides them with the analytic skills they will need to meet those challenges. Each course in the curriculum requires students to master the cores issues, principles, and problem-solving approaches for the topic in question, and to apply those fundamentals to the specific challenges confronting their own jurisdictions. The courses are sequenced and integrated to strengthen the overall cohesion of the curriculum, and enhance its effectiveness as professional graduate-level education. Courses include:

- Introduction to Homeland Security
- The Unconventional Threat to Homeland Security
- Policy Analysis and Research Methodology
- Technology for Homeland Security
- Intelligence for Homeland Security: Organizational and Policy Challenges
- Critical Infrastructure: Vulnerability Analysis and Protection
- Special Topics in American Government for Homeland Security
- The Law and Homeland Security: A Multi-Disciplinary Approach
- Comparative Government for Homeland Security
- Strategic Planning and Budgeting for Homeland Security
- The Psychology of Fear Management and Terrorism
- Knowledge into Practice: A Homeland Security Capstone Course

The annual deadlines for on-line applications to the master's degree program are May 1st and December 1st each year (on-line applications are to be completed after the candidate is recommended by the Police Commissioner). The NPS makes the final selection of candidates admitted into the program.

Eligibility: Members of the service in the rank of Sergeant and above, civilian members in managerial titles, or Intelligence Research Analysts who meet the above requirements.

For more information, contact Heather Issvoran, 831-656-2003 (office), 831-402-4672 (cell), hissvora@nps.edu.

FBI National Academy

The FBI National Academy has long been a vital element in the continuing improvement of law enforcement standards, knowledge, and cooperation throughout the world. The National Academy experience provides a wide range of leadership and specialized training, as well as an opportunity for professional law enforcement officers to share ideas, techniques, and experiences during ten (10) weeks of courses that are accredited by the University of Virginia.

Award: Attendance to ten (10) weeks of classroom study during one of four sessions conducted annually at the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Virginia. Room and meals are provided by the Academy, but students are responsible for providing their own means of transportation.

Eligibility: Potential candidates must be uniformed members of the service in the rank of either Sergeant or Lieutenant with a minimum of five (5) years of service at the time of application. Applicants must be in excellent physical condition, capable of vigorous physical activity, and able to meet established FBI weight requirements.

Note: A Department Bulletin will announce the commencement of the application period along with the Department guidelines for applying.

Only candidates selected by the Department to attend will be allowed to complete the on-line registration with the FBI Virtual Academy.

Professional Fellowship in Police Studies Fulbright Program with the United Kingdom

The United Kingdom Fulbright Commission in London offers professional fellowships in the field of Police Studies. The Fellowships are made available under the Fulbright program to enable active police officers and police administrators to expand their professional expertise and experience conducting research into an aspect or a problem of policing shared by police departments in the United States (U.S.) and the United Kingdom (U.K.). These fellowships are being made available under the Fulbright program to allow police professionals to broaden their professional perspective and contribute to greater U.K. / U.S. understanding. Applications are welcome from any applied area of domestic police work or police administration. Researchers or academics in criminal justice are not eligible for this professional award that is targeted for the practitioner.

Non-Traditional Scholarship Opportunities

Award: Candidates approved by the Department and selected by the Fulbright Commission will be granted paid leaves of absence to participate in these programs. The fellowship is for a period of three to four months. The starting date is to be arranged with the U.K. Fulbright Commission, but the grant must begin no earlier than September of the following year that the application is submitted, and completed by August of the next year. The award consists of a fixed sum grant of 5,000 British Pounds Sterling (travel inclusive), or approximately $8,000 USC.

Eligibility: Applicants must be currently employed by a domestic police force, must be recommended by supervisory staff within their Department and hold a position of authority at the rank of Sergeant or above.

Academic requirements:

- Candidates holding a bachelor's degree in criminal justice, police studies or a related discipline in the social sciences are preferred.
- The fellowship is for professional development and the exchange of ideas with British counterparts. Applicants must develop a substantive project and demonstrate that participation in the program will produce benefits of significance to the larger law enforcement community.
- Candidates must supply information on possible hosts in order to be competitive.

- Successful candidates will arrange their own affiliation to a higher educational host institution appropriate to the research topic. A letter of invitation is not required at the time of application, but is advantageous. The proposed host institution should have links with the U.K. police forces.

Projects: All projects should be focused on issues pertaining to policing and should be of obvious potential worth to the applicants' home department in the U.S. and to the larger law enforcement community. Applicants are encouraged to consider the value of the chosen topic in relation to both home and host institutions, and to consider any legal issues that may be involved with the research (i.e., applicants should make certain the topic chosen is not one from which U.S. police are barred from participation).

Applicants should consider the feasibility of completing the proposed research in the time frame proposed. An important concern, also, is that the project be one that requires the candidate's presence in the U.K. to accomplish the research. If the work can be done in the U.S., there is no need to send the applicant to the U.K. Applicants are encouraged to consult with officers in the field about interest in and use of work proposed.

Non-Traditional Scholarship Opportunities

Applicants do not need to confirm an affiliation prior to submitting an application, but it is advantageous to have identified a few potential host institutions and/or to include a letter of invitation with the application. If the candidate is selected for an award, the U.K. Fulbright Commission will assist with affiliation. University programs are usually identified as police science, law enforcement, criminology, criminal justice, or corrections.

The following universities may offer relevant courses: Queen's University, Belfast; Brunel University; University of Cambridge; Cardiff University; Coventry University; University of Durham; University of Edinburgh; University of Keele; University of Kent at Canterbury; King's College, London; Kingston University; University of Leeds; Leicester University; University of Lincolnshire and Humberside; Liverpool Hope University College; Liverpool John Moores University; London School of Economics; Loughborough University; Oxford Brookes University; University of Manchester; University of Portsmouth; University of Sheffield; University of South Hampton; University of Stirling; University of Wales, Bangor; and University of West England (Bristol). The higher education host institution should have links with U.K. police forces and should be appropriate for the proposed research.

Note: Applications, including reference forms and special instructions, may be obtained from the Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) web site www.cies.org Applicants may also request materials by writing to the following address:

Phillips Beth Israel School of Nursing

The mission of the Phillips Beth Israel School of Nursing, as a single purpose institution, is to provide optimal academic and clinical experiences, which will enable individuals to obtain an Associate in Applied Science Degree, and be eligible for licensure as Registered Professional Nurses.

The educational program prepares graduates to use the knowledge and skills necessary for problem solving, thinking critically and collaboration that is necessary for health care providers to manage the care of patients. The education also prepares them to be responsible for their own personal and professional growth

The aim is to graduate nurses who will provide high quality, culturally sensitive and compassionate care in diverse acute and community settings. They will be flexible, accountable, practice ethically, and maintain the legal standards of the profession.

With these objectives in mind, the Phillips Beth Israel School of Nursing would like to assist uniform and civilian members of the New York City Police Department with finances associated with the pursuit of the Associate in Applied Science degree at the School of Nursing

Brooklyn Law School Criminal Justice Post Graduate Fellowship Grants

The Criminal Justice Post-Graduate Fellowship Fund was created to promote public service criminal law practice by Brooklyn Law School graduates. This idea is facilitated by awarding loan repayments stipends to graduates who have been practicing public criminal law, (i.e. Legal Aid, Public Defenders, District Attorneys' Offices, Juvenile Justice Agencies, and other government agencies) for five consecutive years.

The purpose of this program is to enable experienced and committed graduates with substantial educational debt to continue practicing in public sector criminal law. The program hopes to help the graduates lessen their debt burden, and to inspire an abiding commitment to the practice of public sector criminal law. The fund will award at least two $7,500 grants annually.

Eligibility: Applicants must be currently practicing in the area of public sector criminal law (including, but not limited to, work for prosecutors or public defenders) for at least five consecutive years. Applicants must have educational debt of at least $30,000 at the time of graduating from law school, and significant remaining indebtedness.

Applicants must consent to permit the fellowship committee to use any information by the applicant for publicity purposes.

Note: The principal criterion for awarding the fellowship is an outstanding commitment to public sector criminal law. Applicants can demonstrate this commitment in numerous ways including professional services, community work, or participation in various bar associations and committees.

For applications or questions, contact Marva Skeene, Brooklyn Law School, 250 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201, 718-780-0351, marva.skeene@brooklaw.edu.

Writing a Personal Statement

Personal statements are usually required when requesting consideration for a scholarship or admission to a school. Here are some recommendations on how to prepare a personal statement:

- Be yourself and not the ideal applicant.
- Address the school's unique features that interest you.
- Provide the reader with insight into what drives you to excel.
- Evaluate experiences, rather than describe them.
- Strive for substance rather than content.
- Avoid repeating information found on the application.
- Do not complain about the circumstances in your life.
- Do not talk about money as a motivator for your academic choice or career goals.
- Do not use technical language or uncommon words
- Do not remind the school of how reputable or prestigious they are.
- Proofread document carefully for grammatical and structural errors.

The context of a personal statement should be as unique as its writer, within limitations. Before you begin to write, assess your ambitions, successes, limitations and experiences. Ask yourself and answer some of the following questions:

- What details of your life might set you apart?
- What are your career goals?
- How did you learn about the field you will pursue?
- What is distinctive, special, or impressive about you or your life?
- What are some of the compelling reasons you should be selected?

Entrance Examinations

GRE

The Graduate Record Examination (GRE) is not required for admission to all graduate programs or schools. The schools and programs which require GRE scores will provide their own minimum passing scale.

The GRE examination is made up of two parts. The first part, called “The General Test,” is designed for general admission into a school and is divided into three sections: verbal, quantitative, and analytical writing. The second part, called “The Subject Test,” is designed for entry into a particular program within a school. The total GRE scores are valid for five years.

The GRE examination is given year-round at computer-based test centers in the New York City area. Paper-based exams are available several times a year. Prospective students must register to take the test. Students are advised to use available preparatory programs in advance.

For more information log on to: www.gre.org.

GMAT

The Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) is required by most business schools and Master of Business Administration programs as part of their evaluation process for admission. The GMAT is a computerized examination made available in test centers where prerequisite registration is mandated.

The GMAT score is valid for 5 years.

The GMAT is made available fifty-two (52) weeks a year. Preparation for the examination will take time and preparatory programs are available.

For more information log on to: www.gmat.org.

LSAT

The Law School Admission Test (LSAT) is the most important admission element of any law school. Minimum entrance LSAT scores vary between each school. Most of the examination is comprised of multiple choice questions; however, an essay is included. The test is made available every February, June, October and December.

LSAT preparatory programs are available and recommended.

Eliciting Recommendations

Letters of recommendation are part of the evaluation process for all New York City Police Department scholarships. Admissions offices in colleges and universities, as well as sponsors who provide scholarships, also consider letters of recommendation as a requirement of their selection process. When eliciting a recommendation, select someone who is knowledgeable about your skills and abilities and who will write a favorable letter.

Submitting a well composed reference letter along with your college application could have a positive impact on the admissions committee during the admissions process. Two frequently used types of reference letters are the academic and non-academic reference letters.

Academic letters of recommendation are provided by past or present instructors, professors or a faculty member of a school. Their observations and tangible evidence of work assignments will help elaborate strengths and potential for future academic pursuits.

A non-academic letter of recommendation is usually obtained from an immediate supervisor (past or present), religious leader in a house of worship, elected officials, community activists, or sport coaches. Each may provide first hand, in-depth character witness statements highlighting the prospective students' experiences, skills, and contributions made character traits, and how they relate to the merit of a scholarship or admission into a school.

Before approaching anyone for a letter of recommendation, make sure it is someone who can honestly state, from personal experience, the reasons you are qualified for consideration. Willing participants will offer their personal time to compose your letter. The letter of recommendation should read as a personal and honest character assessment by the writer.

Recommended Reading

Many books offer information about colleges and universities. Below is a list of most of the popular titles, although it is by no means exhaustive. Most public libraries carry these books or similar titles.

Information about colleges and universities can also be obtained via the Internet. Some of the publishers and schools maintain websites. If you do not have Internet access at home, you may be able to access this information at the Police Academy's Education Resource Center or your local library.

Finally, remember that these books and others like them are general guides. Once you have narrowed your search to a few specific schools, get as much information from the schools in question as possible, and you should plan to visit the schools and ask pertinent questions.
