SCDA Accepting Applications for Specialty Crop Block Grant Program

Institutions and groups that support specialty crops within South Carolina are invited to submit applications for the Specialty Crop Block Grant Program. Those interested in participating in the program are encouraged to visit the South Carolina Department of Agriculture (SCDA) website, www.agriculture.sc.gov, to obtain the grant information and application.

The Specialty Crop Block Grant Program – Farm Bill is administered by the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. The program is committed to help strengthen the market for specialty crops. Specialty crops are defined as fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, dried fruits, and horticulture and nursery crops, including floriculture. SCDA will accept proposals for these funds through May 16.

SCDA encourages organizations to develop projects that enhance the competitiveness of specialty crops, sustain the livelihood of farmers, and strengthen local economies by:

Applications Available Now for 2014 SC Commissioner's School for Agriculture

High School juniors and seniors interested in exploring agricultural careers can apply now for the South Carolina Commissioner's School for Agriculture (SCCSA), held at Clemson University, July 19-25.

SCCSA is an academic summer program coordinated by the South Carolina Department of Agriculture and Clemson University's College of Agriculture, Forestry and Life Sciences. Students selected for the program will spend a week on Clemson's campus exploring career options in the agricultural industry through workshops and hands-on activities.

Students learn about greenhouse production, soil science, athletic turf-grass management, animal and veterinary sciences, packaging science, aquaculture, forestry, wildlife, and natural resources. The school also includes visits to Clemson University Research Farms, the Clemson Experimental Forest, and a whitewater rafting trip down the Chattooga River. More than 350 students have graduated from the program, since it started in 2004. A number of those students have pursued agriculture related majors and careers.

"Commissioner's School is an enlightening experience for many high school students each summer, because it gives them the chance to see all the opportunities available in agriculture. Agriculture is part of the state's leading industry sector, agribusiness, and this school is helping develop the next generation of industry leaders," said Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers.

Interested students can visit <http://www.clemson.edu/cafls/scdsa/> to download the application. Applications must be post marked by April 23. For information about SCCSA, contact Katie Black at 864-656-6662 or hulse@clemson.edu, or Elizabeth Shuler at 803-734-0328 or eshuler@scda.sc.gov.

Mmm, Mmm, Good!

What a great weekend at the third annual Commissioners Cup BBQ Cook Off and Festival at the State Farmers Market! Every year I say it couldn't possibly get any better, but this year the cooks really showed off their barbecuing expertise. I'm sure of this because South Carolina officially has the best barbecue in the country, and over forty of the best barbecue cooks in the state showed up to please our taste buds with their original recipes.

This year's state title winner and grand champion went to Summerville's Dennis Jarrett of Pot Belly Cookers. Jarrett received an automatic bid to the World Food Championship held in Las Vegas.

Second overall went to Ronnie Bishop of On-the-Spot BBQ in Greenwood. If I had been the judge, there would have been over forty ties for first place.

Years ago people were told not to eat too much barbecue because they were worried about fat content. Obviously that was misguided advice; as today's pork is leaner, juicier and has fewer calories than ever before, with 31 percent less fat than just ten years ago. In fact, pork's new slogan, "The Other White Meat," has become everyone's reason to eat more pork.

What's better on your dinner plate than a thick, tender pork chop? Years ago people used to cook pork chops until they were dry, tough and tasteless. They thought they had to kill the bacteria in raw pork.

However, with advances in pork production and husbandry, trichinosis has become a thing of the past.

Mmm, Mmm, Good!

The last known documented cases were years ago. Not only do our pork producers have rigorous standards in place to make sure their pigs are healthy, but all their meat is USDA-inspected. That means we can enjoy chops and pork roasts that aren't overcooked. Like all good cooks, Blanche prepares some good pork chops--I like mine with just a slight pink tint in the middle. At my mother's table, Friday's lunch always included pork chops.

Pork is more than great tasting; it's also an important part of a balanced diet. Pork has a high nutrient density, which means a three-ounce serving makes a satisfying meal. That serving has less fat than the same size portion of skinless chicken thigh.

And there are so many things you can do with pork! Let's see, there's ham, bacon, sausage, pork roast, eye of pork, hot dogs, bologna, pork and rice. Not quite as long as the shrimp list from Forrest Gump, but you get the point. And how about them chitlins? The town of Salley is known world-wide for its Chitlin Strut. Needless to say it's an acquired taste, but this Southern old-time favorite is an icon that the Salley area folks are proud to showcase.

The future of the pork industry is extremely bright. Domestic demand for pork grew by more than 5.6 percent last year, and the United States exported $6 billion worth of pork for the third consecutive year. That's 4.73 billion pounds of pork and variety meats. Those exports added nearly $54 per hog marketed. Mexico, Japan, China, Canada, and Central and South America are our top pork markets. In fact, more than 100 countries around the world bought U.S. pork last year. Combined with much more reasonable feed prices, the outlook is positive for South Carolina farmers.

As the world's population grows, so does the middle class, which means more people worldwide will improve their diets. And through good work to get the word out, consumers are better educated than ever about the value and versatility of pork as well as ways to prepare it.

When you plan your next meal—whether for a few or a large spread, why not include pork? You've got too many good reasons not to.
