Appendix

Instructions for Completing Your Basis of Claim form

In order for you to get refugee protection in Canada, the Immigration and Refugee Board of Canada (IRB) must decide that you are a "Convention refugee" or a "person in need of protection." These terms are defined in Canada's Immigration and Refugee Protection Act, and you can find the definitions in the Claimant's Guide in your Claimant's Kit.

The purpose of your Basis of Claim form (BOC form) is to present your claim for refugee protection to the Refugee Protection Division of the IRB. All members of your family who are claiming refugee protection must provide their own BOC form, even though your claims will be processed together. The information given in each person's BOC form will be used to make decisions in the claims of the other family members. For more information to help you complete your BOC form, please see the Claimant's Guide in your Claimant's Kit.

Answering the questions

- Please see the Claimant's Guide for more information before completing your BOC form.
- The information you give in your BOC form must be complete, true and correct. Your BOC form will be used as evidence in your claim for refugee protection, and you will be asked questions about the information you give in the form. Your claim may be rejected if you give information that is not true or if you try to hide important information.
- Make sure that you understand the instructions and the questions, before you write your answers. If you do not understand a question, ask someone to explain it to you.
- You must answer all of the questions in the form. If a question does not apply to you, write "N/A" (not applicable) as your answer.
- Give details in all of your answers, and include dates and names of places and persons. If you need more space, use additional sheets of paper the same size as the BOC form.
- Sign the applicable claimant's declaration at the end of the form when you are finished.

Language

You can obtain and complete the BOC form in either of Canada's official languages: English or French. If you do not understand English or French, you will need to get an interpreter. Make sure that the interpreter reads all of the questions in the form to you and that the interpreter understands your answers. You and the interpreter must both sign the form when you are finished. The Claimant's Guide provides more information about choosing between English and French and about asking for an interpreter for your hearing.

Children less than 18 years old

- Children 6 years old or younger who are claiming refugee protection with a parent: Complete only the "WHO YOU ARE" section of the BOC form. The form must be signed by the child's parent or the person named by the IRB to represent the child in their claim.
- Children 7 to 17 years old who are claiming refugee protection with a parent: Complete the entire BOC form. The form must be signed by the child's parent or the person named by the IRB to represent the child in their claim.
- Children of any age under 18 who do not have an adult with them: The person named by the IRB to represent the child in their claim must complete the entire BOC form and sign it.

Documents

You must show the IRB evidence of who you are by giving the IRB official documents with your name and date of birth on them. For example, you can give a passport, national identity card, birth certificate, school certificate, driver's licence, military document, professional or religious membership card. If you do not have documents like this with you, you need to do everything you can to get them immediately. If you still cannot get these documents, you will need to explain the reason for this at your hearing and show that you did everything you could to get them.

Attach two copies of all documents (identity, travel or other documents) that you have with you now to support your claim for refugee protection, including documents that are not genuine, documents that you got in an irregular or illegal way or by giving information that is not true, and documents you used that do not really belong to you. In addition to the documents listed above, you can include proof of membership in political organizations, medical or psychological reports, police documents, business records, news clippings, visas, and airplane, train or bus tickets. Include certified translations in English or French for all documents if they are in a language other than English or French. Translations are certified when they include the translator's name, the language and dialect, if any, translated, and a statement that the translation is accurate, signed by the translator. You must pay for these translations yourself. You must bring the originals to your hearing (or give them to the IRB sooner if the IRB asks for them), unless the documents have been seized by Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) or Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA). Please see the Claimant's Guide for more information.

If you get more identity or travel documents that support your claim after you have provided your BOC form, give two copies to the IRB without delay.

If you get more documents, other than identity or travel documents, that support your claim after you have provided your BOC form, give one copy to the IRB and a copy to the Minister, if the Minister is a party, at least 10 days before your hearing.

Deadline and process for submitting the BOC form to the IRB

1. If you are making your claim at an immigration office inside Canada, you must bring the completed BOC form and one copy with you to your eligibility interview.

2. If you made your claim on arrival at a port of entry (an airport, seaport or land border crossing), you must give your completed original BOC form and one copy to the IRB no later than 15 calendar days after the date that the immigration officer gives you the blank BOC form.

You can bring the completed BOC form and the copy, yourself, to the IRB office listed on your Notice to Appear, or you can send the form by courier, fax (if the document is no more than 20 pages long, unless the IRB consents to receiving more than 20 pages) to that IRB office but you are responsible for them being received by the due date. (Note: If the BOC form is faxed to the IRB, the original must be provided at the beginning of the hearing.)

Failure to provide the completed BOC form to the IRB by the deadlines

If you made your claim on arrival at a port of entry and the IRB does not receive your completed BOC form within 15 calendar days, you will have to go to a special hearing no later than five working days after the deadline and explain why the IRB should not declare your claim abandoned or, in other words, why you should be allowed to continue with your claim. The IRB may accept or reject your explanation. If it rejects your explanation, your claim will be declared abandoned which means you will not be allowed to continue with your claim, or make another claim for refugee protection in the future.

If you have counsel, you are responsible for making sure that your counsel meets the deadlines

Making changes

If your information changes or if you want to add information, you must inform the IRB. Underline the information you changed or added to your BOC form, sign and date the changed pages, and send the original and one copy to the IRB. You must also sign a declaration stating that the information you have given in the BOC form, together with the changes and additions you have made, is complete, true and correct. The IRB must receive these pages and the declaration at least 10 days before your hearing.

Your personal information

The confidentiality of the information you provide in this form is protected by the Privacy Act. Your personal information may be disclosed only in the circumstances where such disclosure is permitted under the terms of that Act and of the Access to Information Act.

Disclosure in other claims

Although the confidentiality of the personal information you give in your BOC form is protected, your information may be used in other claims that are related to yours or similar to yours, even if the other person is not claiming refugee protection with you. Before releasing this information to another claimant, the IRB will try to inform you about this in writing. To make sure that you receive this information, remember to give the IRB your new address when you move, even after you have received a decision on your claim. The IRB will not release the information if there is a serious possibility that releasing it will put someone's life, liberty or security in danger or is likely to cause an injustice. If you do not want your personal information to be released, please explain on a separate sheet of paper why you think there is a serious possibility that releasing your information may put someone's life, liberty or security in danger or is likely to cause an injustice. Attach the sheet of paper to your BOC form.

Disclosure to other organizations

The personal information you provide on this form is collected under the authority of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act for the purpose of determination of your claim for refugee protection by the IRB. Your personal information may be shared with other organizations including the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA), Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC), the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and law enforcement agencies, for the purpose of administration and enforcement of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act.
